What is an AI agent?

An AI agent is an AI helper that can use tools and work through a task in steps.

Read your notes.

Write a draft.

Save it for you.

You tell it what to do.
You check the result.

Choose one task.

You'll pick one useful task and an AI tool that can do it.

"Help me write three posts for my business."

Choose work you know how to check.

Give it the right information.

You'll give it the facts and examples it needs.

Who I help: small businesses.

What I offer: website reviews.

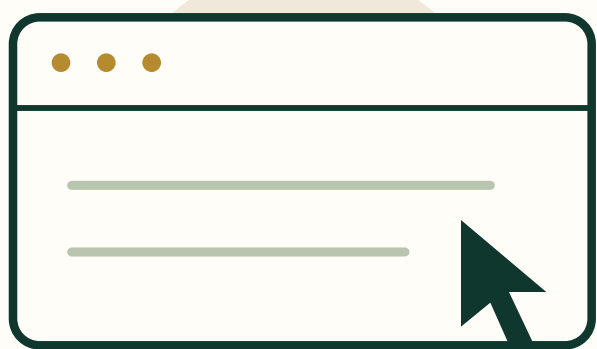

How I write: friendly and clear.

"Ask me if anything is missing."

Connect tools if you need them.

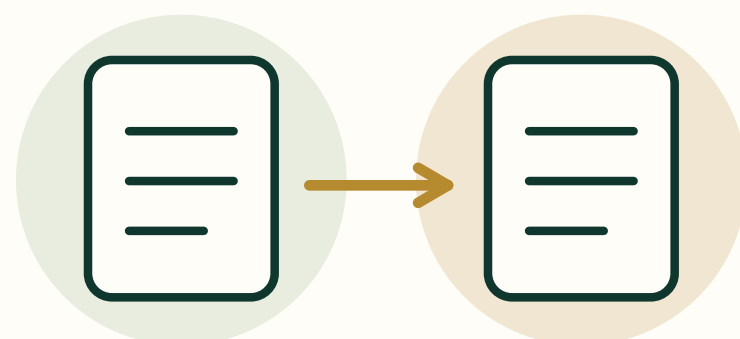

Start by pasting your notes.
You can also connect:

Browser add-on (extension)

Read pages.
Click. Type.

App connection

Find files.
Save drafts.

MCP is one way to connect
AI to apps.

You choose what AI can access.

Let AI make a first draft.

AI can find ideas, write three posts and save them for you to check.

DRAFT 1

Share a useful tip.

DRAFT 2

Explain your service.

DRAFT 3

Answer a common question.

Check it before it gets shared.

- ☐ Are the facts right?
- ☐ Do the links work?
- ☐ Does this sound like you?

AI can make mistakes.

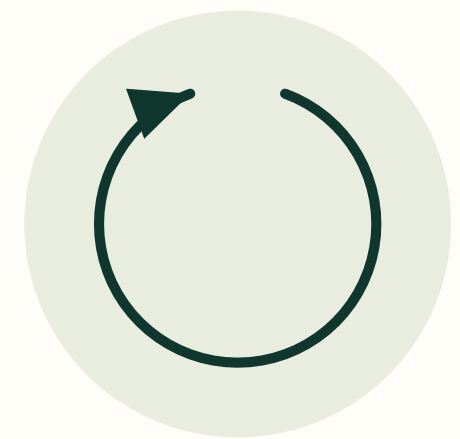

After you approve, post it yourself or use an app that can post for you.

Save the steps. Use them again.

You'll keep your instructions and update the information next time.

Improve the draft:

“Use everyday words.”

Track your time, tool costs and changes.

What else could you do?

Research

Compare options and collect source links.

Find work

Find suitable projects and draft a proposal.

Emails

Turn meeting notes into follow-up messages.

Reports

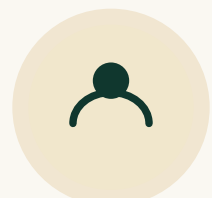

Turn spreadsheet numbers into a weekly summary.

Could you offer this as a service?

Start with a skill you already have.

“I help small businesses create three social posts a week.”

-  Make a sample.
-  Show a potential customer.
-  Ask what would make it useful.

What will you leave with?

- ✓ A finished example you've checked.
- ✓ Instructions you can use again.
- ✓ A checklist for catching mistakes.
- ✓ A plan to use AI in your work or side hustle.

Start with one task.
Learn by doing.
